There are 2 distinct sections for this animated desktop wallpaper -- an under-water screen and a sky. The under-water screen depicts an aquarium with plants and 'fish'. The sky represents a blue/purple color-enhanced cylinder of water. When the Under-Water Screen section of the desktop wallpaper is on, it will scroll down from the top of the screen, giving the viewer the illusion that the aquarium 'water' is rising. The speed of the scrolling increases as the image becomes more clear. At the bottom of the screen, there is a boat with 'fish'. The boat slowly moves, following the rising bubble of water. When the Sky Screen section of the desktop wallpaper is on, it will scroll up from the bottom of the screen, giving the viewer the illusion that the sky is rising. In this section, there is only the water with a very thin layer of the sky color-enhanced in the middle. The color-enhanced water is flowing down a rocky cliff, and is reflected in the real sky, seen through the stationary, natural light. When the sky is on, the boat will be on the surface of the water, heading toward the right side of the screen, moving faster. The speed of the scrolling increases as the image becomes more clear. When the boat reaches the left side of the screen, it stops, and the image fades. Once the Desktop wallpaper is set, it will remain on your desktop until it is manually turned off.
