In this guide, I will provide you with the best Photoshop Elements tutorials, how-to and will show you how to create some of the most beautiful pictures ever. Photoshop Elements 2019 is a free alternative to Photoshop, offering simplified features and a streamlined user interface. This tutorial will walk you through how to create the below featured pictures in Photoshop Elements. We'll go through a "Fresco" tutorial, the hot new trend of creating posters and artists are pushing it to the very limit! Then we'll go ahead and create a beautiful butterfly using a new, quirky "minion" filter that allows you to create any color palette you want. Under the Microscope tutorial We'll use Adobe Photoshop Elements to create a microscopic picture of an Nteseungia rufa -- a butterfly. First we will go ahead and prepare the image using a Curvature Filter, a lighting effect using a Gradient Map and a zooming effect using a Lens Distortion Tool. You'll learn how to create an image from scratch or from a photograph, plus how to apply Photoshop effects to create a fantastic looking product. Next, we will go ahead and add texture to the butterfly using a colored texture and use a Cutout effect to remove the background. Finally, we will go ahead and add a stylized, realistic look to the butterfly using a Stylize effect and create a gradient overlay. To complete the image, we'll go ahead and add some text and add the finished product to our portfolio. Demonstration Images 1. One of the most important things about photography is light, and Photoshop Elements has one of the best tools for digital photography: the Curvature filter. Use the Curvature filter to add some complexity to images, like the ones below. 2. Click on the Rectangular Marquee Tool and draw a selection around the pupil of the butterfly. Select Filters>Blur>Gaussian Blur to add a nice glow to the butterfly's eye. 3. Select Filter>Blur>Motion Blur and adjust the amount of blur you want to add to the photo. 4. Now we will go ahead and light the photo. Select Filter>Light and adjust the color of the spotlight to a cool color. 5. Using the Gradient Map, we will create a gradient map that will lighten the dark spots in the butterfly's eyes. Select Filters

The role of preoperative left atrial activity in predicting late atrial fibrillation after mitral valve surgery. Postoperative atrial fibrillation (AF) is a common and serious complication of mitral valve surgery. Its incidence has increased in recent years. We studied the role of preoperative left atrial activity (LAA) in predicting late AF after mitral valve surgery. The study comprised 72 patients (68 ± 9 years, 38 males) who underwent mitral valve surgery. LAA was recorded for 50 minutes before anesthesia. AF occurred postoperatively in 10 patients (14%) and persisted in 24 patients (33%). Although the mean preoperative LAA in patients with postoperative AF was higher than in patients without AF (26 ± 17 ms vs 12 ± 7 ms, p = 0.04), preoperative LAA was not found to be a reliable predictor of late AF (C statistic of 0.59, p = 0.12). The most significant parameter for predicting late AF was the preoperative mean heart rate (C statistic of 0.88, p The present invention relates to a device for automatically detecting the presence of a passing or oncoming vehicle at a distant place and outputting a warning by utilizing the light of the vehicle on the basis of the detection result. If a vehicle is running on a crossroad, there are possibilities that the oncoming vehicle is not detected or that the warning is not outputted by means of an alarm lamp such as a buzzer. In order to prevent the accidents caused by the foregoing situation, a variety of devices have been developed to detect the presence of a vehicle. One of them is disclosed in Japanese Utility Model Registration Publication SHO 63-21105. This device detects a vehicle by utilizing the change in the level of the electric field of the radio wave emitted from the vehicle. As to the conventional device using the change in the radio wave emitted from the vehicle as described in the above Patent Publication, the radio wave from the vehicle is detected at a position where the level of the radio wave is

Q: How to make single auth user in React Native? I am creating a react native app which requires authentication for user. Should i make new user for every request or should i keep authenticated user in redux store and then fetch on every request? A: You are always expected to use the auth token to get the current user. You don't have to directly map the user to the redux store. But in case, you still want to use your custom persistent store, you can try the following code import React from "react"; import { View, Text, TouchableOpacity, Alert, StyleSheet } from "react-native"; import { connect } from "react-redux"; import { fetchUserData } from "../actions/action_functions"; let currentUser = ""; class App extends React.Component { componentDidMount() { currentUser = JSON.parse(localStorage.getItem("currentUser")); } render() { return ({JSON.stringify(this.currentUser)}); } } const mapStateToProps = state => ({ user: state.user, }); const mapDispatchToProps = dispatch => ({ fetchUserData: () => dispatch(fetchUserData()), }); export default connect(mapStateToProps, mapDispatchToProps)(App); const styles = StyleSheet.create({ container: { flex: 1, justifyContent: "center", alignItems: "center", backgroundColor: "#F5FCFF", borderWidth: 1, borderColor: "#000", marginVertical: 10, }, }); Gastric ulcer disease resulting from Helicobacter pylori infection and its eradication. Both infection by Helicobacter pylori and peptic ulcer disease are pandemics whose incidence has increased over the last decade. First, H. pylori infection is a major risk factor
